Frank D'Angelo's fourth feature film, 'Sicilian Vampire', has been chosen as an opening night feature at this year's New York City Big Apple Film Festival. The worldwide premiere takes place at 8:00 pm, November 4 at Village East Cinemas followed by an audience question and answer session with the Director and Cast.

Written, directed and produced by Frank D'Angelo, Sicilian Vampire stars actors James Caan, Daryl Hannah, Paul Sorvino, Robert Loggia, Armand Assante, Robert Davi, Michael Paré, Eric Roberts, Daniel Baldwin, Tony Nardi and Frank D'Angelo.

Big Apple Film Festival has been named one of MovieMaker Magazine's '25 Festivals Worth The Entry Fee' and '25 Coolest Film Festivals'.

Sicilian Vampire is equal parts 'Goodfellas' and 'Dusk till Dawn'. It tells the story of reputed mobster Sonny Trafficante who was hoping to get away to the family hunting lodge for a little rest and relaxation and create some memories. Instead what he got was a night he will never forget.

Frank D'Angelo has written, produced, directed and acted in a total of four feature films in the last three years and is now in preproduction of his fifth film, 'The Red Maple Leaf', which is scheduled to begin shooting later this fall. He is a screen writer, director, actor, musician and Canadian talk show host. As a performer, he knew there was a big void in Canadian television for Canadians to promote their talents and so he created 'The Being Frank Show', a late night talk/variety show which broadcasts nationally in Canada, just starting taping its 6th season.
